

BURUNDI FLOODS ENDANGER LIVES

You can provide flood victims with safe, clean water

Thousands of residents are fleeing their destroyed homes as floodwaters from Burundi's Lake Tanganyika continue to overflow. Many people live in an increasingly dire situation where they cannot cultivate food to feed their families as rain continues, and problems compound daily.

The Government is calling on Amazi Water™ to conduct an emergency intervention and provide technical solutions in the capital city – one of the country's most populated areas. The Ministry of Health emphasized that Amazi's support is critical because the increased risk of cholera is serious.

You can help provide lifesaving clean water to meet immediate critical needs during this crisis. Join us as Amazi Water is uniquely positioned to step up and respond in this unusual situation as the headquarters is nearby, and the organization has expertise and experienced personnel.

$52,000 is needed immediately to serve 4,000 people in the most high-impact area with a custom-designed water system.

Give today to get water solutions underway, as flooding is expected to worsen in May. Every $13 you give provides a person with a lifetime water supply.

Amazi Water's goal is to provide long-term, safe, clean water solutions to every community in Burundi. Amazi is poised to provide access to safe, clean water border-to-border by 2030 as the primary Burundi NGO providing water relief.

Designation: DP00001 (Designated Project 00001)

Neither homes nor farmland have been spared by the relentless rise of Burundi's Lake Tanganyika in April 2024.
